

OFFERS ISSUE OF $500,000

Salt Lake & Ogden Road Will Place Its Improvement Bonds in Utah.

MONEY FOR EXTENSIONS

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE COMPLETED IN TWO YEARS.

Twenty-year first mortgage improvement gold bonds, bearing 5 per cent interest, and redeemable semi-annually on sixty days' notice, are to be placed in the market at once by the Salt Lake & Ogden Railway company. These bonds have been issued by the railroad company for the purpose of double-tracking the road between Salt Lake and Ogden, to electrifying it, and to extend the line of the road through Ogden canyon.

Local investors will have the first opportunity to take up a part of these bonds as the management of the road desires that at least a part of the securities be held here in Utah.

The bonds, in the sum of $500,000, are now in the hands of the United States Mortgage & Trust company of New York, but subscription lists will be opened at the local office of the railroad, for local subscriptions.

The bonds are to be sold subject to the option of the company, to redeem any bond at 5 per cent premium on the first day of June or December, of each year, upon sixty days' notice. Interest is payable semi-annually, on these dates. The denominations of the bonds are $500 and $1,000.

Bonds Personally Guaranteed.

President Simon Bamberger of the railroad company has given a personal guarantee for the payment of interest coupons covering the first two years from the date of the bonds.

The completion of the work of improvement along the line of the road, including extensions, double-tracking and electrifying the system, will be in two years, it is estimated.

The bonds are offered at 96 per cent of par value and accrued interest, 10 per cent of the amount of each subscription being given in cash to the company as bonus. The bonds are first lien and mortgage on all property of the company. Included in the company holding is a franchise for fifty years in Salt Lake City, a franchise for a similar period in Ogden; a franchise for 100 years through Farmington, Bountiful and Kaysville, and franchises for fifty years through Davis and Weber counties.

Other holdings are depots, terminals, grounds, stations, tracks, switches, brick yard branches, sidings and switches, full equipment of rolling stock, engines and other properties necessary to the operation of a railroad.

The Lagoon resort is also owned by the company and this property is free from indebtedness.

First Interurban Road.

The improvements which are contemplated will make the road an important factor in the business life of Salt Lake and Ogden, furnishing an inter-urban service which has been needed for a long time. The track is now laid to Layton, twenty-two miles from Salt Lake and the grade has been completed nearly to the Ogden city limits, and from Ogden to the mouth of Ogden canyon, the latter grade being two and one-half miles in length. Material is already at hand and is being laid over the graded portion of the line. When the track is finished, there will be thirty-five miles of double track.

The mortgage is made to the United States Mortgage & Trust company of New York, and is for $1,500,000, and the bonds are to be disposed of as follows:

For all the property, franchises and holdings of the company free from any incumbrance or obligation, to August 1, 1906, $500,000.

Bonds now offered for sale at public subscription, $500,000.

To remain unsold, the property of the company to be used for extensions and for other purposes to be determined upon later by the company, $400,000.

The subscription books will be opened at the offices of Simon Bamberger, and the National Bank of True Republic in Salt Lake, and the Pingree National Bank of Ogden for local subscriptions. They will be closed at noon August 6.

"Work on the contemplated improvements will be pushed as rapidly as possible," Mr. Bamberger said yesterday. "The double tracking of the line between Salt Lake and Ogden will greatly facilitate the handling of trains and will insure the safety of passengers."

"The road will be electrified and an up-to-date inter-urban service will be given, for both freight and passenger service. The rights of way, and the necessary franchises have been secured and all is now in shape for putting into operation the plans that the company has had for many years. I am offering the bonds to local investors because I believe it better to have people at home interested and reaping the benefits."

MANICURE AND HAIR-DRESSER RELATES SOME OF HER EXPERIENCES

"Yes, we do have some rather interesting experiences," said a handsome Main street manicure, as she polished off the right hand of the man behind the table yesterday. "I suppose every line has its specialties, but ours is rather unique. Of course, you know there are a variety of people come to us for ured. He had six hairs on the top of his head and a little fuzzy fringe around the outside edge, as it were. He rubbed his hand over the six hairs and wound up around the approach to his neck with a veritable caress, his fingers passed over the remainder of what had once been a crop.

"I want some hair on de top," he said, with a marked accent.

"Yes," I responded, "I had never advertised any special ability to grow hair where none grew before."

"I will give you anything you name," went on the enthusiastic little man, "for a good hair, so help me, on de top."

"Well," I said, "I can treat your scalp and tell you what is best to do, and I know I can help the scalp, but I do not guarantee any growth till I have examined the scalp."

"This seemed satisfactory and he prepared to seat himself for my inspection."

"What is this that you charge?" he inquired cautiously before he had reached the chair.

"I stated my rates and prices, and he still hesitated."

"Now, I haf dose lace curtains and some table cloths and a few good Bibles vat I like to trade for this work. How you tink you like to make a trade?"

"I told him I had no use for the articles mentioned, and with a sigh of apparently genuine regret, he took his departure."

Many Want Hair Dyed.

"Oh, my, no! all the freaks are not men by any means. There are the women who come regularly to beg me to dye their hair. There are the peroxide blondes who aver they never had anything done to their hair in the world, but the last hairdresser just ruined it. And won't I just touch it up a bit for them? And more frequent than any are the women who dread the first gray streaks. Now, if they only knew God tempests the wind to the storm, but less than he does a face to the hair surrounding it, and even where hair is prematurely gray (which it invariably is), according to their theory, the softness which it gives to the face is wonderfully becoming."

"No, by no means is hair-dyeing confined to women, nor to women with gray hair. Some people are never satisfied with the style or the color Na-years, but which refused to be hidden. He came finally, when he had made his selection as to the proposed direction of his affections, to seek a tonic and a hair dye combined which should guarantee to him a renewed covering and, at the same time, add a more youthful color to his locks. I told him I could close to his mouth with a faint gray fringe.

"Are there many men here who wear wigs? Well, I should say not so large a proportion as one finds in eastern cities. You see men, while very vain creatures, are rather shameless, and when under the same circumstances a woman would not dare put her head outside a man will go anywhere with a shining head uncovered with any excuse for hair. There are, however, a number whose shining tresses are laid aside when they seek their couches, among whom may be named a prominent individual well known in business both here and in Los Angeles, whose raven locks are his pride. They ought to be, too, for they have cost him a pretty penny and he's none too generous with money."

Dealing With Peroxide Blondes.

"The peroxide blonde is always an interesting creature to the hairdresser. She comes in looking as bright as a May spring, but more startling, and begins by telling that she doesn't know what has happened to her hair, to make it look the color it does. She never mentions the fact that she has many shades darker at the roots than an inch or so beyond, but she deprecates the dishonesty of the other hairdresser who has 'put something in the water' with which to wash it. I patiently explain to her that only time will relieve the trouble, but I know my scruples are needless, for she will go to some one who will continue to 'put something in the water,' just the same."

Getting the Nails "Fixed."

"Oh, my, yes, I have some funny experiences, too, but of course nothing so picturesque as in the hair line. There's the woman whose hands have been sadly neglected till her husband made the stake and who now comes in and pretends that she has always had her nails 'fixed,' as she calls it. She is not satisfied with an ordinary polish, but would like to be able to see her face in the nail when it is finished, never heeding whether fine care has been taken of the cuticle or not. Then there is the man who regularly keeps his hands in good condition—usually a traveling man—and who is accustomed to do nothing for him, and he went his ways—but not to failure. The next time I saw him, which was a week later, he had a glorious shade of brown on the remaining locks, but the bare place was still in plain sight. One week worked a wonderful transformation. The stuff must have been of that kind which, when applied to the hair, causes it to grow in a deep, dark black. Of course he was the butt of admiring comment from all his acquaintances (and, being a tailor, he had many). When, however, a week later he appeared with a rainbow effect in purple and bronze greens where once had hung the few gray straggling locks, he was a marvelous sight to behold. Streaks of light and shade gave radiance to the sparse locks, and to cap it all a 'scratch wig' of light brown, ordered in the hey-day of the early stages of his transformation, surmounted his variegated pate and fell like a mantle, making his hair look as if it were a single color. He was a bright, cheerful fellow, and by the terms of the suit had received the former home, would stand at the door as he passed by on his errand of love and let him at his hair. No, perhaps this was not a professional performance, but it was one of the funniest I ever had. No, he did not get the girl."

Curious for a Thatch.

What Makes It Green.

"What makes those iridescent hues? Well the material out of which hair dye is made is all composed more or less of metals such as lead, copper, silver or arsenic. Now all hair has a great amount of sulphur in it, and the mixture of any of these minerals with sulphur will form a sulphide which makes the hair black. When these dyes are used by unskilled persons or used in excess they cause a bright metallic green formation such as you see on peacock's feathers."

"There's many a man in this town who, if seen in his natural color, would startle his closest friends with his grizzly looks. I know one of the prominent men in Salt Lake whose flowing beard is his pride and joy, and who seems to think he fools his friends with it. I don't know who does the job for him, but I know it is poorly done, for I have seen him with a streaked beard many times, the copper hue mixing genially with the black, and the two topped ture has given them, and of course in some cases it does. Then the old dame had played them a mean trick. Women with glorious hair of perhaps one color or perhaps another will spend time and bring wrinkles just wishing they were a different color. Then in an evil hour comes the friend(?) who suggests a change, and the poor, foolish woman finds herself out of harmony with her surroundings."

Man Prepares for Wooing.

"I recall the case of a Salt Lake man who would a-wooing go, having rid himself of the remembrance of a former partner, and the wiles of the poor, deluded mortal were never equalled by woman. He was a thin type with a little round place on the top of his head which he had tried vainly to hide for looking for a chance to get up a cheap flirtation with every manicure he patronizes.

"There's the gossip who will tell me all the news of her neighbors and scandal about people I don't know, and there is the supposedly dignified creature who is afraid to speak at all. You would be amazed if I should tell you the things I learn about personal affairs and such, and the source of my information. Well, that'll be about all or I'll be telling you things myself."

And with a rapid whisk of the buffer the job was done.

WELLS CROWD HAS NO CANDIDATE

Followers of Former Governor Unable to Make Any Concerted Action.

The Heber M. Wells faction of the Republican party will put up no candidate in opposition to Congressman Joseph Howell. This news comes from an inside source, and it seems unlikely that the Wells men will take any concerted action in the campaign. Former Governor Wells himself is quoted by a friend as saying that as between Congressman Howell and Parley P. Christensen he prefers Mr. Howell, even though the latter is identified with the Smoot machine. Other Wells men prefer Mr. Christensen, and the outlook for any Wells movement is not bright.

Lack of organization and a disheartened feeling are said to be the causes of the lassitude of the Wells men. Two years ago when Governor Wells made his hard fight against the Smoot machine for a renomination, he had behind him all the state officers. He was then in office, and had a machine of his own that was in no slouch. Beaten then, he has been in private life for two years, and has had not a single crumb of patronage to dispense. As a rule his followers have been turned out of office, and his organization has gone to pieces.

There is some desultory talk that the Wells men may yet spring J. T. Hammond as a candidate for congress, but little importance is attached to this. Mr. Hammond, it is said, is strongly adverse to making the race. It is said that his ambition is to be elected to the supreme bench, though he has no intention of entering the race for that office this fall.

A week ago there was talk that Benjamin X. Smith would be a Wells candidate for congress, but this has died out. A few anti-Howells men tried to work up a boom for Mr. Smith, and consulted sundry anti-machine politicians about it. The general verdict was that the occasion for Mr. Smith to run for congress was not propitious, and Mr. Smith himself frowned on the suggestion. It is understood that it is no longer seriously considered.

Smoot Out for Howell.

It will soon be too late for anybody else to enter; the congressional race, because Senator Reed Smoot is openly at work setting up the pins for Mr. Howell's renomination. He has sent the word to his benighted liege, every county in the state that he expects them to help deliver their home delegations for the man from Logan. Mr. Howell's postoffice appointees are also at work.

Political opinion is general that, as between Mr. Howell and Mr. Christensen, there is little doubt of Mr. Howell's nomination. Parley P. himself imagines that he is strong enough to down the Smoot machine in the Republican state convention, but unfortunately for him, nobody else seems to think so. Mr. Christensen has burned his bridges, however, and renounced his claim to a renomination for county attorney. Willard Hansen, state chief deputy, will run for that office.

Bartch May Write Letter.

Chief Justice George W. Bartch will retire from the bench over a month before the election. It is said that he will resign his retirement by joining the "American" party. From an "American" source comes the information that, before the election, Judge Bartch will write an open letter to the people of the state stating his reasons for becoming an "American." This letter, it is said, will be used as an "American" campaign document. In the letter, it is said, Judge Bartch will take the ground that, while he formerly counseled peace with the Mormon church, machine rule has reached such a pitch that he feels it his duty to cast his lot with the "Americans."

It is known that Judge Bartch is itching to lay violent hands on the Smoot crowd; but his timidity is a quality well known and recognized by politicians, and as one "American" put it yesterday, "Bartch ever writes such a letter some body will have to hold his hand and his head while he does it."

McCarty to Be Chief Justice.

The retirement of Judge Bartch will make Judge W. M. McCarty chief justice of the supreme court until his term on the bench expires in 1908. If the Smoot machine hold together that long, that date probably will witness Judge McCarty's retirement from the bench, too. He has quarreled with the Smoot machine beyond the possibility of a reconciliation. The machine leaders openly announce that when McCarty's term expires they will "get him," and Judge McCarty is just as vigorous in saying things about the machine.

Judge McCarty's quarrel primarily was with Senator George Sutherland. It ended, however, in a quarrel with the line. Judge McCarty opposed the candidates for the machine for several federal offices.

WIFE INSANE; NO DIVORCE.

Theodore Eisenbarth's Petition is Denied by Judge Morse.

Although his wife has been confined in a Cleveland (O.) insane asylum for five years and is regarded as hopelessly insane, Theodore Eisenbarth's petition for a divorce was denied by Judge Morse yesterday. The court held that the facts in the case were sufficient to justify granting a divorce, but that Eisenbarth's wife, who is a resident of Utah, and Judge Morse, following a recent decision of the United States supreme court, is refusing to grant divorces in all cases where both parties are not residents of the state.

An appeal from Judge Morse's ruling has been taken to the supreme court of the state and is set for argument in December. Meanwhile people who want divorces must see to it that their husband or wife, as the case may be, live in Utah.

and his efforts finally brought about peace between him and his body connected with the "organization." He probably is on better terms of friendship with Senator Smoot himself than with any other machine leader, but he is nevertheless, to be classed as a vigorous anti-Smoot man. And Judge McCarty is a man who, when he takes a position, never makes any secret of where he stands.
